💬 Discuss · Consumer Rights (news clippings collage)

? Why did the people go to the Consumer Disputes Redressal Commissions in these cases? In what ways were they denied justice? How can they exercise their rights as consumers to get a fair deal?

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Why they went: the sellers or service providers did not listen to their complaints, so they went to the Consumer Commission to get justice and compensation.

How they were denied justice (from the clippings):

- A Delhi University teacher got a wrong (flawed) phone bill from a telecom firm.
- An insurance firm refused to pay the claim for a stolen mobile phone.
- A housing society ignored complaints of poor construction of a flat.
- A bank gave sloppy (careless) service to a customer.
- An insurance firm denied a medical claim; a business institute deceived students.

How to get a fair deal: know your rights, keep the bill and warranty, complain to the seller first, then file a case in the District, State or National Consumer Commission (with or without a lawyer).

⭐ Let's Work These Out · The Consumer in the Marketplace

1 What are the various ways by which people may be exploited in the market?

✔ ANSWER

- Less weight or measure: shopkeepers weigh less than they should.
- Hidden charges: traders add charges that were not mentioned before.
- Adulterated or defective goods are sold.
- Higher price: charging more than the MRP.
- False information: big companies give misleading advertisements through the media (e.g. powder milk claimed to be better than mother's milk).
- Poor service and no responsibility: the seller says 'If you didn't like it, go elsewhere'.
- No choice: forcing the buyer to buy one thing with another (e.g. gas stove with a new gas connection).

2 Think of one example from your experience where you thought that there was some 'cheating' in the market. Discuss in the classroom.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Model answer: Last month my mother bought a packet of biscuits. The shopkeeper charged ₹35 though the MRP printed on the packet was ₹30. When we pointed it out, he said it was a 'cooling charge'.

- This is an unfair trade practice, because no one can charge more than the MRP.
- We could have complained to the consumer helpline or the Consumer Commission.

3 What do you think should be the role of government to protect consumers?

✔ ANSWER

- Make laws like COPRA and the RTI Act, and update them (e.g. COPRA amended in 2019).
- Enforce rules strictly: check weights and measures, adulteration, MRP and safety standards.
- Set quality standards and make certification (ISI, Agmark) compulsory for important goods.
- Provide quick and cheap redressal through Consumer Disputes Redressal Commissions.
- Spread awareness through campaigns like 'Jago Grahak Jago' and support consumer organisations.
- Punish sellers who cheat or give false advertisements.

⭐ Let's Work These Out · Consumer Movement

1 What could have been the steps taken by consumer groups?

✔ ANSWER

- Writing articles and holding exhibitions to create awareness.
- Forming groups to look into malpractices in ration shops and overcrowding in road passenger transport.
- Guiding consumers on how to file cases and representing them in the Consumer Commissions.
- Putting pressure on business firms and the government to correct unfair business conduct.
- Demanding laws for consumer protection, which led to COPRA 1986.

2 There may be rules and regulations but they are often not followed. Why? Discuss.

✔ ANSWER

- Weak supervision: the government does not check strictly.
- Low awareness: many consumers do not know their rights.
- No bills: in most small purchases cash memos are not given, so there is no proof.

- Costly and slow redressal: cases take time and money, so people do not complain.
- Powerful sellers: big companies have money and influence; consumers are scattered.
- Weak consumer movement in many areas.

⭐ Let's Work These Out · Safety is Everyone's Right

1 For the following products/services, discuss what safety rules should be observed by the producer: (a) LPG cylinder (b) cinema theatre (c) circus (d) medicines (e) edible oil (f) marriage pandal (g) a high-rise building.

✔ ANSWER

Product / service	Safety rules for the producer
(a) LPG cylinder	ISI-certified cylinder and valve; no leakage; correct weight; test date marked
(b) Cinema theatre	Fire extinguishers, clear emergency exits, exit signs, no overcrowding
(c) Circus	Strong tent and safety nets; animals kept safely; first aid; fire safety
(d) Medicines	Correct composition; expiry date, batch number, directions and side effects printed
(e) Edible oil	No adulteration; Agmark/quality mark; sealed pack with date and ingredients

(f) Marriage pandal	Fire-proof material; safe electric wiring; fire extinguishers; exits
(g) High-rise building	Strong structure as per building code; fire exits, lifts with safety checks, earthquake safety

2 Find out any case of accident or negligence from people around you, where you think that the responsibility lay with the producer. Discuss.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Model answer: A neighbour bought a new pressure cooker. Within a week its safety valve failed and the lid flew off, causing burns.

- The producer is responsible because the safety valve was defective.
- Under the right to safety, the neighbour can ask for replacement and compensation, and file a case in the District Consumer Commission.

⭐ Let's Work These Out · Information about Goods and Services

1 When we buy commodities we find that the price charged is sometimes higher or lower than the Maximum Retail Price printed on the pack. Discuss the possible reasons. Should consumer groups do something about this?

✔ ANSWER

Higher than MRP: shopkeepers may add 'cooling' or carrying charges, or take advantage of shortage, festival demand or lack of awareness. This is illegal.

Lower than MRP: competition among shops, discount offers, old stock near expiry, or the buyer bargains (consumers can bargain below MRP).

Yes, consumer groups should act against overcharging: create awareness, report such shops to the authorities and help consumers file complaints.

2 Pick up a few packaged goods that you want to buy and examine the information given. In what ways are they useful? Is there some information that should be given but is not? Discuss.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Information usually given: ingredients, price (MRP), batch number, date of manufacture, expiry date, net weight, address of the manufacturer, quality mark (ISI/Agmark).

Usefulness: we can compare products, check freshness and price, know if it is safe for us, and complain or ask for replacement if it is defective.

Missing information (example): often there is no customer-care number, no clear storage instructions, or very small print that is hard to read.

3 People make complaints about lack of civic amenities such as bad roads or poor water and health facilities but no one listens. Now the RTI Act gives you the power to question. Do you agree? Discuss.

✔ ANSWER

Yes, I agree.

- The RTI Act (October 2005) ensures citizens all information about the functions of government departments.
- We can ask how much money was sanctioned for a road and how it was spent, or why water supply is poor.
- Officials must reply in a fixed time, so they become accountable and work faster.
- Example: Amritha used RTI to know her job result and got her appointment letter.

However, people must be aware of the Act and actually use it.

⭐ Let's Work This Out · When Choice is Denied

? Which of the following offers would really benefit consumers? Discuss.

- 15 gm more in every 500 gm pack.
- Subscribe for a newspaper with a gift at the end of a year.
- Scratch and win gifts worth Rs 10 lakhs.
- A milk chocolate inside a 500 gram glucose box.
- Win a gold coin inside a pack.
- Buy shoes worth Rs 2000 and get one pair of shoes worth Rs 500 free.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Really beneficial: '15 gm more in every 500 gm pack': every buyer surely gets extra quantity at the same price (if the price has not been raised).

Somewhat beneficial: 'Milk chocolate inside a glucose box' and 'shoes worth Rs 500 free': everyone gets the gift, but only if we really need it; the cost may be added to the price.

Not really beneficial: 'Scratch and win Rs 10 lakhs' and 'win a gold coin': only a few lucky people win. 'Gift at the end of a year' ties us to one newspaper for a year.

Such catchy offers are made to attract buyers; a wise consumer checks quality and price, not just the gift.

⭐ Let's Work This Out · Where should consumers go to get justice?

? Arrange the following in the correct order.

(a) Arita files a case in the District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission.

(b) She engages a professional person.

(c) She realises that the dealer has given her defective material.

(d) She starts attending the commission proceedings.

(e) She goes and complains to the dealer and the Branch office, to no effect.

(f) She is asked to produce the bill and warranty before the commission.

(g) She purchases a wall clock from a retail outlet.

(h) Within a few months, the dealer was ordered by the commission to replace her old wall clock with a brand new one at no extra cost.

✔ ANSWER

(g) → (c) → (e) → (a) → (b) → (d) → (f) → (h)

She buys the clock, finds it defective, complains to the dealer without result, files a case, engages a professional person, attends the proceedings, produces the bill and warranty, and finally gets a new clock.

💬 Discuss · Learning to Become Well-informed Consumers

? How do we become conscious of our rights? Look at the posters in the book. What do you think?

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

- The posters (e.g. 'Jago Grahak Jago' by the Ministry of Consumer Affairs) tell consumers about their rights, the consumer helpline and how to complain.
- They use simple words and pictures (like Mahatma Gandhi's message 'A customer is the most important visitor on our premises'), so even ordinary people understand.
- Such posters and TV advertisements make us alert: ask for a bill, check the expiry date and quality marks, and complain when cheated.

(check the picture in your book)

📘 Let's Work These Out · Learning to Become Well-informed Consumers

1 Look at the posters and cartoons in this chapter. Think of any particular commodity and the aspects that need to be looked at as a consumer. Design a poster for this.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Model poster: 'Buying Medicines? Be Alert!'

- Check the expiry date and batch number.

- Do not pay more than the MRP; always take a bill.
- Read the directions for use and side effects.
- Buy only from a licensed chemist.
- Cheated? Call the National Consumer Helpline or go to the District Consumer Commission.

Add a simple drawing of a medicine strip with a magnifying glass on the expiry date.

2 Find out the nearest Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission for your area.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Every district has a District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, usually at the district headquarters (often in the collectorate / DC office complex).

Find yours on the website of your State Consumer Commission or from the consumer-affairs website of the Government of India, and write its address here.

3 What is the difference between consumer protection council and Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission?

✔ ANSWER

Consumer protection council	Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission

A voluntary organisation (consumer forum) formed by people	A quasi-judicial body set up by the government under COPRA
Guides consumers on how to file cases and creates awareness	Hears consumer cases and gives verdicts
May represent consumers in the commissions	Can order replacement, refund or compensation
Gets financial support from the government for awareness	Works at three levels: district, state and national

4 Rights: (i) choice (ii) information (iii) redressal (iv) representation (v) safety (vi) consumer education. Categorise the following cases:

(a) Lata got an electric shock from a newly purchased iron. She complained to the shopkeeper immediately.

(b) John is dissatisfied with the services of MTNL/BSNL/TATA INDICOM for the past few months. He files a case in the District Level Consumer Commission.

(c) Your friend has been sold a medicine that has crossed the expiry date and you are advising her to lodge a complaint.

(d) Iqbal makes it a point to scan through all the particulars given on the pack of any item that he buys.

(e) You are not satisfied with the services of the cable operator catering to your locality but you are unable to switch over to anybody else.

(f) You realise that you have received a defective camera from a dealer. You are complaining to the head office persistently.

✔ ANSWER

(a) Right to safety (v)

(b) Right to redressal (iii)

(c) Right to redressal (iii) (an expired medicine is also a safety issue)

(d) Right to information (ii)

(e) Right to choice (i)

(f) Right to redressal (iii)

5 If the standardisation ensures the quality of a commodity, why are many goods available in the market without ISI or Agmark certification?

✔ ANSWER

- Certification is not compulsory for all products; it is mandatory only for some goods that affect health and safety or are of mass consumption (LPG cylinders, food colours and additives, cement, packaged drinking water).
- For other goods, producers may choose not to get certified, because it costs money and needs them to follow quality standards.

- Many small and local producers sell goods without marks, and many buyers do not ask for them.

6 Find out the details of who provides Hallmark and ISO certification.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

- Hallmark: given by the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS), India's national standards body. It certifies the purity of gold and silver jewellery, through BIS-recognised assaying and hallmarking centres.
- ISO: the standards are made by the International Organization for Standardization, based in Geneva, Switzerland. ISO certificates (e.g. ISO 9001 for quality management) are given by accredited certification bodies; BIS represents India in ISO.

📝 Exercises

1 Why are rules and regulations required in the marketplace? Illustrate with a few examples.

✔ ANSWER

Individual consumers are often in a weak position, while sellers try to shift all responsibility on to the buyer. So rules are needed to protect consumers.

- Unfair practices: shopkeepers weigh less, add hidden charges, or sell adulterated/defective goods.
- Powerful companies: when producers are few and powerful and consumers are scattered, companies can manipulate the market.
- False claims: a company sold powder milk for years claiming it was better than mother's milk; it took years of struggle to make it accept the false claim.
- Hidden dangers: a long court battle was needed to make cigarette companies accept that their product could cause cancer.
- Safety: a defective safety valve in a pressure cooker can cause a serious accident, so quality rules are needed.

Hence rules and regulations are needed to ensure a fair deal and protection for consumers.

2 What factors gave birth to the consumer movement in India? Trace its evolution.

✔ ANSWER

Factors: dissatisfaction of consumers with unfair practices of sellers; no legal system to protect them; rampant food shortages, hoarding, black marketing, and adulteration of food and edible oil.

Evolution:

- The movement began as a 'social force' and took an organised form in the 1960s.
- Till the 1970s, consumer organisations mainly wrote articles and held exhibitions; they formed groups to look into malpractices in ration shops and overcrowding in road passenger transport.
- The movement put pressure on business firms and the government; in 1986 the government enacted the Consumer Protection Act (COPRA).
- A three-tier system of Consumer Disputes Redressal Commissions was set up; 24 December is observed as National Consumers' Day.
- More recently, the number of consumer groups has grown (over 2000 today), and COPRA was amended in 2019 (online buying, mediation, penalties).

Thus the movement grew from awareness work to a legal system for consumer protection.

3 Explain the need for consumer consciousness by giving two examples.

✔ ANSWER

Consumers must be aware of their rights so that they are not cheated and can get justice.

- Example 1: If we check the expiry date and MRP on a medicine pack, we will not buy expired medicine or pay more than the printed price.
- Example 2: Abirami knew her right to choose, so when the coaching institute refused to refund her fee, she went to the District Consumer Commission and got a refund of Rs 28,000.

An aware consumer can make informed choices and complain when exploited.

4 Mention a few factors which cause exploitation of consumers.

✔ ANSWER

- Limited information and low awareness among consumers.
- Few, powerful producers and scattered consumers buying in small amounts.
- False or misleading advertisements in the media.
- Unfair trade practices: under-weighing, adulteration, hidden charges, overcharging.
- Weak supervision of rules and no bills (cash memos) for most purchases.
- Costly, slow redressal and a weak consumer movement.

5 What is the rationale behind the enactment of Consumer Protection Act 1986?

✔ ANSWER

- Consumers were being exploited through unfair trade practices, and there was no legal system to protect them.
- Earlier it was thought that being careful was only the consumer's responsibility; the consumer movement pressed business firms and the government to correct unfair conduct.
- COPRA (1986) was enacted to protect consumer rights: safety, information, choice, redressal, representation and consumer education.
- It set up a simple, quick and cheap three-tier quasi-judicial machinery (district, state, national) where consumers can file cases even without lawyers.
- It also led to separate Departments of Consumer Affairs in central and state governments to spread awareness.

6 Describe some of your duties as consumers if you visit a shopping complex in your locality.

✔ ANSWER

- Always ask for a bill / cash memo and keep it with the warranty card.

- Check quality marks like ISI, Agmark or Hallmark.
- Read the label: MRP, date of manufacture, expiry date, ingredients, weight.
- Do not pay more than the MRP; bargain if possible.
- Do not be misled by catchy offers and advertisements; compare before buying.
- If cheated, complain to the seller and, if needed, to the Consumer Commission.

7 Suppose you buy a bottle of honey and a biscuit packet. Which logo or mark you will have to look for and why?

✔ ANSWER

- Honey: Agmark. It is the quality mark for agricultural and food products (like edible oil and cereals).
- Biscuit packet: ISI mark (given by the Bureau of Indian Standards) for standard quality.

These marks assure us that the product follows certain quality standards and is safe to eat. We should also check the expiry date and MRP.

8 What legal measures were taken by the government to empower the consumers in India?

✔ ANSWER

- Consumer Protection Act (COPRA), 1986: gave consumers rights and a way to get redressal.
- Three-tier Consumer Disputes Redressal Commissions: District (claims up to Rs 1 crore), State (Rs 1 crore to Rs 10 crore) and National (above Rs 10 crore); appeals can go from district to state to national level.
- COPRA amended in 2019: online buying included; service providers/manufacturers can be penalised or imprisoned for defects; disputes can be settled through a mediator; complaints can be filed online and heard through video conferencing.
- Right to Information (RTI) Act, 2005: citizens can get information about government departments.
- Departments of Consumer Affairs in central and state governments; compulsory quality certification for some products; MRP printed on packs.

These measures help consumers get justice and compensation.

9 Mention some of the rights of consumers and write a few sentences on each.

✔ ANSWER

- Right to safety: protection against goods and services hazardous to life and property (e.g. Reji Mathew got compensation for medical negligence).
- Right to information: to know the particulars of goods: ingredients, price, batch number, dates, address of manufacturer. The RTI Act extends this to government services.
- Right to choice: a consumer can choose whether to continue a service; a seller cannot force us to buy one thing with another.
- Right to seek redressal: to get compensation against unfair trade practices, depending on the degree of damage.
- Right to representation: to be represented in the Consumer Disputes Redressal Commissions.
- Right to consumer education: to get knowledge and skills to become a well-informed consumer.

10 By what means can the consumers express their solidarity?

✔ ANSWER

- By forming consumer groups, consumer forums or consumer protection councils.
- Through Residents' Welfare Associations, which take up cases on behalf of members.

- By filing a complaint as a group (class action suit).
- By holding awareness campaigns, writing articles, exhibitions and protests against unfair practices.
- By joining bodies like Consumers International at the global level.

11 Critically examine the progress of consumer movement in India.

✔ ANSWER

Progress:

- From the 1960s it grew into an organised movement; COPRA was passed in 1986 and amended in 2019.
- India is one of the countries with an exclusive authority (three-tier commissions) for consumer redressal; 24 December is National Consumers' Day.
- There are more than 2000 consumer groups, of which about 50–60 are well organised and recognised.

Limitations:

- The redressal process is becoming cumbersome, expensive and time-consuming; consumers often need lawyers.
- Cash memos are rarely issued, so evidence is hard to gather; most purchases are small retail sales.

- Consumer awareness is spreading, but slowly; enforcement of laws (e.g. for unorganised workers) is weak and market rules are often not followed.

Conclusion: the movement has progressed, but it can be effective only with active, voluntary involvement of all consumers.

12 Match the following.

2 Mrs. Krishna bought a colour television (CTV) against six months warranty. It stopped working after three months; the dealer's engineer could not set it right and she gets no reply now. Write a letter to the Consumer Commission on her behalf.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

To

The President,

District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission,

[District, City]

Date: [ ]

Subject: Complaint against defective colour television and poor after-sales service

Sir/Madam,

I, Mrs. Krishna, resident of [address], bought a colour television (model [ ]) from [dealer's name and address] on [date] for Rs [ ], with a six-month warranty (copies of bill and warranty card enclosed).

The television stopped working after three months. On my complaint, the dealer sent an engineer, but the set still gives trouble. Since then, the dealer has not replied to my complaints.

This is a deficiency in service and a defective product. I request you to direct the dealer/manufacturer to replace the television with a new one or refund the price, and to pay compensation for the harassment and costs.

Yours faithfully,

Mrs. Krishna

Enclosures: copy of bill, warranty card, copies of complaints made

3 Establish a consumer club in your school. Organise mock consumer awareness workshops like monitoring bookshops, canteen, and shops in your school area.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Plan:

- Form a club with a teacher in charge, a secretary and members from each class.
- Make checklists: bill given? MRP followed? expiry dates? cleanliness and quality marks?

- Visit the school canteen, bookshop and nearby shops in small groups and note findings.
- Hold a workshop with role plays (customer and shopkeeper), posters and a talk on COPRA and the consumer helpline.
- Share a report with the principal and suggest improvements.

4 Prepare posters with catchy slogans like: An alert consumer is a safe consumer; Buyers, Beware; Consumers be cautious; Be aware of your rights; As consumers, assert your right; Arise, awake and stop not till _____ (Complete it).

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Completed slogan: 'Arise, awake and stop not till you get your consumer rights / justice.'

More slogans: 'No bill, no deal!', 'Check the date, don't be late!', 'MRP is the limit, not the start!'

Make each poster with one slogan in big letters and a simple picture (e.g. a magnifying glass on a label).

5 Interview 4-5 persons in your neighbourhood and collect varied experiences regarding how they have been victims of such exploitation and their responses.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

Sample findings:

- A vegetable seller used stones instead of proper weights; the buyer objected and got the right weight.
- A shopkeeper charged more than MRP for a cold drink; the buyer paid without complaining.
- A mobile phone stopped working in warranty; the person complained to the service centre and got it repaired after many visits.
- A gas dealer forced a person to buy a stove with a new connection; the person accepted as he did not know his rights.

Conclusion: most people do not complain or take bills; awareness of rights and the Consumer Commission is low.

6 Conduct a survey in your locality by supplying the given questionnaire (17 questions, answers Always / Sometimes / Never) to get an idea as to how alert they are as consumers.

💡 SAMPLE ANSWER

How to do it: give the questionnaire to 10–15 people, collect the answers and count A, B and C for each person.

How to judge (from the book's note):

- Answers (C) for Qns 5, 12, 13, 15, 16 and (A) for the rest: extremely aware consumer.
- Answers (A) for Qns 5, 12, 13, 15, 16 and (C) for the rest: needs to wake up as a consumer.
- (B) for all questions: somewhat aware.

Write a short report: how many people fall in each group and what can be done to make them more alert.
